5.	Virtual Art Exhibition	As every year, we organize the AIT ART EXHIBITION, and some things shall be continued for goodness. Though these days are a bit different, but a dose of happiness and joy would always be the first cure. Hence with that motive we organized first ever virtual art exhibition with the THEME: BOLLYWOOD Link : http://aitartexhibition.in/	2000+ visitors	-NA-	 The image shows a screenshot of a website for a virtual art exhibition. The header includes navigation links: Home, Art Gallery, Video Gallery, Events, Rule-Book, Results, About us. The main banner features the text 'FINE ARTS CLUB' and 'ART EXHIBITION' with the theme 'BOLLYWOOD'. Below the banner, there is a section titled 'BOLLYWOOD-ART AND THE TRUE KNOT' which displays three vintage movie posters: 'MOTHER INDIA', 'BAHAM', and another one. Each poster is accompanied by a small text box providing historical context or details about the poster.

From 1930 onwards, Amrita Sher-Gil painted a series of self-portraits representing her many moods

Displayed in the exhibition 'Amrita Sher-Gil: The Passionate Quest' at the National Gallery of Modern Art, New Delhi.

Amrita Sher-Gil Birth Centenary Celebrations organized at UNESCO, Paris, by the National Gallery of Modern Art

This is an actual surviving village Bollywood poster of the 1967 James Bond style spy thriller that featured the evergreen superstar of Indian cinema, Dev Anand in the lead role. Vyjayantimala and Ashok Kumar also played memorable roles in the film

Printed and circulated a few years after the first release of the film (somewhere in the 1970s), this old Bollywood movie poster was printed for publicity of the film but never ended up being used

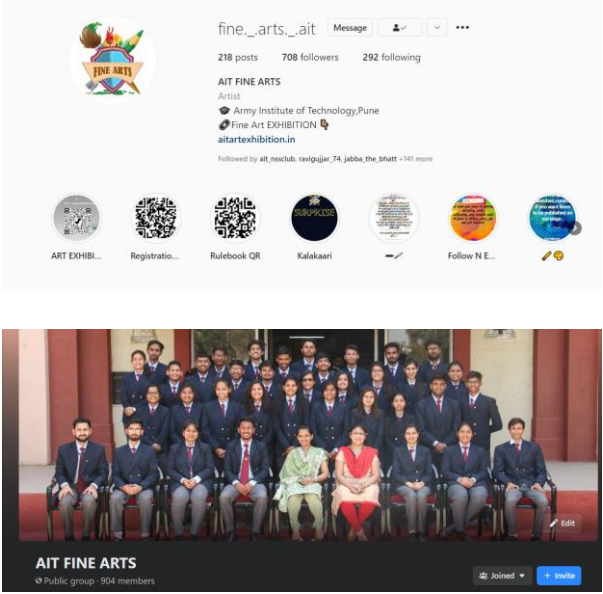

LET'S COMPETE !
